Seventh Sunday of Easter

© J. S. Paluch Co., Inc.

Gladden us with holy joys, almighty God, and make us rejoice with devout thanksgiving, for the Ascension of Christ your Son is our exaltation, and, where the Head has gone before in glory, the Body is called to follow in hope. Amen.

Enséñanos con santas alegrías, Dios todopoderoso, y haznos regocijarnos con devota acción de gracias, porque la Ascensión de Cristo, tu Hijo, es nuestra exaltación, y, donde la Cabeza ha ido antes en gloria, el Cuerpo está llamado a seguir con esperanza. Amén.

PERSEVERANCE

Life would be so much easier for us if Jesus were still walking the earth among us. It would eliminate so many arguments and provide undeniable proof that Jesus lived, died, and rose again. But what would his physical presence mean to us? There would indeed be benefits: we really could ask the question, "What would Jesus do?" and get an answer! But there would also be enormous temptation to expect him to solve all life's problems directly. "Jesus, please stop the war in . . .," "Lord, please find me a new job," "I beg you, Lord, to cure my friend." We might want to spend countless hours in his presence, neglecting our personal vocation and responsibilities. Jesus commanded his disciples to proclaim the good news to every nation. He promised that the power of the Holy Spirit would be given to them to help them persevere. This power would also help them do extraordinary things in his name. Then Jesus disappeared from their sight, and returned to his place at the right hand of God. We have never had the grace of knowing Jesus in human form. The disciples were promised they would be clothed with power from on high; by the same token we received a white garment at our baptism and were told we were now clothed in Christ. For those of us who were baptized as infants, the idea of being clothed in power meant nothing at the time. But this power was indeed given to us, to be nurtured and to come to fulfillment in our adult lives. For us to persevere as followers of Jesus we continually need the power of the Spirit. Let us set aside a time each day, as the first disciples did, to seek out the Spirit's power in prayer as we approach the feast of Pentecost.

PERSEVERANCIA

La vida sería mucho más fácil para nosotros si Jesús estuviera todavía por la tierra entre nosotros. Eliminaría muchos argumentos y habría la prueba innegable de que vivió, murió y resucitó. Pero, ¿qué significaría para nosotros su presencia física? Por supuesto que habrían sus beneficios; por ejemplo, podríamos hacer la pregunta, "¿Qué es lo que haría Jesús?" ¡Y obtendríamos una respuesta! Pero también existiría la enorme tentación de esperar que él nos resolviera todos los problemas directamente. "Jesús, por favor para la guerra en . . .;" "Señor, por favor encuéntrame un nuevo empleo", "Te ruego, Señor, que cures a mi amigo". Probablemente emplearíamos horas interminables con él despreocupándonos de nuestra vocación y responsabilidades personales. Pero Jesús encomendó a los discípulos que proclamaran la Buena Nueva a todas las naciones y les prometió que el poder del Espíritu Santo les ayudaría a perseverar. Ese mismo poder les ayudaría a hacer cosas extraordinarias en su nombre. Entonces Jesús desapareció de la vista de ellos y volvió a su lugar a la derecha de Dios Padre. Nosotros nunca hemos tenido la gracia de conocer a Jesús en una forma humana. No obstante, así como los discípulos recibieron la promesa de ser revestidos con el poder de lo alto, nosotros recibimos una vestidura blanca en nuestro bautismo y nos dijeron que ahora estábamos revestidos de Cristo. Para aquellos de nosotros que fuimos bautizados de niños el revestirnos de poder no significó nada entonces. Sin embargo, ese poder se nos dio para que lo cultiváramos y llegara a su plenitud en la adultez. Para poder perseverar como discípulos de Jesús necesitamos continuamente el poder del Espíritu Santo. Se va acercando el día de Pentecostés e igual que los primeros discípulos dediquemos todos los días un tiempo para orar a fin de que podamos siempre estar abiertos al poder del Espíritu Santo.

SEVENTH SUNDAY OF EASTER

Fake news and peace

Peace is possible only when truth is readily available.

This is why Pope Francis has dedicated this World Communications Day to a reflection on the polarizing effect of fake news. False information creates and fuels division, bleeding its consequences into both personal and group behaviors. By contrast, a “journalism of peace” promotes understanding and unites us around common values and goals. Maybe it’s time to stop clicking on inflammatory headlines and refuse to forward the stuff that riles up our indignation. Propaganda is hardly new. Opt for something truly novel: good news!

TODAY’S READINGS: Acts 1:15-17, 20a, 20c-26; 1 John 4:11-16; John 17:11b-19 (60). “Consecrate them in the truth. Your word is truth.”

FEAST OF MATTHIAS, APOSTLE

Let go and love

Jesus’ Last Supper discourses are surely some of the most poignant passages in John’s gospel. You can almost hear the urgency in Jesus’ voice as he exhorts his disciples to carry on and always love one another. Just love one another. Three simple words, yet how difficult they are to live at times! Or at least we make them that way. We prefer to hold on to our anger, resentment, or that small slight from this morning. We are entitled to feel the way we do—right? Yet, how much easier it is to simply let the negative feeling go. It’s as easy as opening your hand. Today, when you find yourself holding on to anger, visualize opening your hand. Let it go. Love one another.

TODAY’S READINGS: Acts of the Apostles 1:15-17, 20-26; John 15:9-17 (564). “You did not choose me but I chose you.”

MEMORIAL OF ISIDORE

Help bring a poor farmer to market

Seventy-five percent of the world’s poor—900 million people—“live in rural areas in conditions of extreme poverty,” according to a March 9, 2006 Vatican statement on agrarian reform. In the absence of internationally guaranteed protections, the Vatican says, “deprivation, exploitation, lack of access to the market, and social exclusion become more acute” among people who work the land. The Vatican urged rich countries to correct policies, such as farm subsidies and trade barriers, that adversely affect the economies of developing countries, and it condemned the concentration of productive farmland in the hands of a few. In honor of Saint Isidore, take steps to support small farmers by purchasing organic and fair trade products and frequenting local farmers’ markets. Learn more about the Catholic rural ethic at .org.

TODAY’S READINGS: Acts 20:17-27; John 17:1-11a (298). “I glorified you on earth by accomplishing the work that you gave me to do.”

EASTER WEEKDAY

Take the long view

The proverb “This too shall pass” may come to mind while struggling through a tough period in life, such as a time of transition or a personal financial crisis. We hope and trust that the pain of these situations is temporary and will eventually pass. Though not often invoked in good times, this proverb can also refer to the passing of good things in our life. It might be, for example, the death of a loved one or the departure of a close friend or mentor, as the early church experienced when Jesus and then Paul prepared to leave behind their earthly lives. It reminds us to be open to what life brings and draw comfort from the fact that God’s love remains constant.

TODAY’S READINGS: Acts 20:28-38; John 17:11b-19 (299). “They threw their arms around Paul and kissed him, for they were deeply distressed that he had said that they would never see his face again.”

EASTER WEEKDAY

Let’s attend the reunion

The Catholic Church’s approach to ecumenism has come a long way since the Second Vatican Council. The previous Code of Canon Law (from 1917) decreed: “It is illicit for the faithful to assist at or participate in any way in non-Catholic religious functions” (no. 1258). That changed with Vatican II and the new Code of Canon Law in 1983, and in 1993 the Pontifical Council for Promoting Christian Unity stated that “Christians may be encouraged to share in spiritual activities and resources, i.e., to share that spiritual heritage they have in common in a manner and to a degree appropriate to their present divided state” (no. 102). We still have a long road ahead, but the road map is clearer.

TODAY’S READINGS: Acts 22:30; 23:6-11; John 17:20-26 (300). “I have given them the glory you gave me, so that they may be one, as we are one.”

MEMORIAL OF JOHN I, POPE, MARTYR

In search of what unites us

Many hopeful moments occurred during the impressive funeral and memorial rites for Pope John Paul II in 2005. Perhaps one of the most remarkable was the gathering of so many leaders of different religious traditions and denominations from around the world. This was a sign of hope that all believers, of whatever corner of the world, could recognize that God is more important than our differences and that, in fact, God longs to gather us all into one. There is one God, the God of all. Let us pray that we will have the faith and humility to let God be God.

TODAY’S READINGS: Acts 25:13b-21; John 21:15-19 (301). “Simon, son of John, do you love me more than these?”

EASTER WEEKDAY

Mind your own business

Celebrity gossip is so pervasive that it’s hard to avoid. How much do you know about the personal lives of the “glitterati”? Sure, these people invite the public into their lives for profit, but scrutinizing—even relishing—the foibles of strangers is a slippery slope. Jesus frequently reminded his followers to focus on themselves—their own failings and how they could improve—instead of worrying about those around them. Are you too quick to judge the actions of others?

TODAY’S READINGS: Acts 28:16-20, 30-31; John 21:20-25 (302). “What if I want him to remain until I come? What concern is it of yours?”

MADRECITA

Madrecita del alma querida en mi pecho yo llevo una flor
no te importe el color que ella tenga porque al fin tú eres madre, una flor.

Tu cariño es mi bien, madre mía
en mi vida tú has sido y serás
el refugio de todas mis penas
y la cuna de amor y bondad.

Aunque amores yo tenga en la vida
que me llenen de felicidad, como el tuyo jamás madre mía
como el tuyo no habré de encontrar
